And while searching for an exit for the people, I offer a suggestion to end the longest of the ongoing revolutions, the Yemen revolution, for the sake of developing and enriching it to be used as an example that could be modified to suit the situation in every country. This would include the details of its realities.

First of all, I should note that solving the crisis requires popular movements to support the Muslims there. The official initiatives have included unjust items, and those who proposed them stated that they are final and not open for negotiations. This suggests that they were initiatives to save the ruler and to circumvent the revolution, so that the neighbors of Yemen would not be influenced by the success of its revolution. (TN: begin underline) Otherwise, the wise people would know that he is not qualified for negotiation, after he has presented many cheating maneuvers and dishonored the promises and lost the people's trust. The documents have proven his collaboration with the Americans to kill his people, as what took place in Ma'rib and Shabwah, then falsifying the facts. (TN: end underline)

Returning to the initiative, I say: That the most important factor giving the ruler of Sanaa his strength in the last instances were the masses that he is producing on Friday and the military organizations that have not joined the revolution yet.

As for the masses that he is producing, it is a phenomena that needs a close look, to know the reasons behind their coming out to support a man who has betrayed the faith and the nation, having inflicted all kinds of harm.

This violates the normal situation of a human in dealing with those who harms him. But those who are well informed, about the details of the Yemeni situation under the current regime for the last quarter of a century, realize a bitter fact... A lot of those masses are in a situation similar to the captives of a ruler where the people have not taken the stand to impeach him, when his reign has fallen legally. He was supposed to be impeached, because he committed an act incompatible with Islamic practice, unanimously agreed upon as such by Muslim scholars, when he was red-handed in supporting the infidels and supplying their military destroyers to kill the disadvantaged Muslims in Iraq. That was more than a decade ago. That means that approximately one third of his reign passed after it became evident to all, his committing of acts incompatible with Islamic rules. Not being condemned for that great crime has lead him to continue his path of violating the Islamic Shari'ah and subjecting the people and destroying the country. This led the masses to reach a degree of tyranny, poverty, and ignorance which cannot be described. Then he resorted to relying on their poverty to buy their support. He exploited the sentiment, the feeling of the father for his children, and the supporter for those whom he supports.

The innocent children have the right, and it is the duty of those sons of this nation who could supply their demands. The parents have the right to relieve their children's poverty and ignorance that were imposed on them by the tyrant. All Muslims in Yemen have the right to save their blood, and relieve themselves from the crisis that they are suffering from. Our search, therefore, to save all, would incorporate the role of all the merchants of the Islamic World, particularly the merchants of Yemen and the Gulf states, and create committees as those which the president is tying his supporters with. But this is only to untie.

the shackles, rather than tightening them. This is accomplished by pledging to give weekly salaries, distributed on Fridays, for whoever quits going to the arenas of the tyrant in his governorate. This is to continue until a new government is established to fulfill their requirements. The cost of these tasks is attainable and easy to any Gulf merchant. (TN: begin highlight) In addition, the merchants should cooperate with the charitable organizations. The scholars and advocates should concentrate their efforts in the remote areas, where ignorance prevails. This is to salvage the masses from ignorance by activating to the preaching attempts in their surroundings. Ignorance is the line of life for the tyrant rulers where they find their solders. (TN: end highlight)

As for the military organizations: One of the ways to deal with them is to form a transitional government that will pledge to the members of those organizations that it secures for them their safety, if they decide to move to its camp, with their employment status and salaries. This is safer to their religion and daily life. He who repents, God will forgive him, and may God forgive what happened before. The salaries for the transitional government are to be provided by a qualified entity, that should pledge its support to give security for those who would join this government, so that there is a source to supply their salaries.
